NATIVE Love

February 11, 2015

NativeLove Team
Annita Luchessi
Rebecca Balog
Rose Quilt
Tara Azure
Tang Cheam
Veronica Willeto
What we are sharing today

• 2013 NativeLove Campaign
• 2015 NativeLove Project
• 2015 NativeLove Challenge
IN 2013 WE COLLABORATED TO DISCOVER NATIVE LOVE
Our 2015 NativeLove Campaign was created and intended to raise awareness and help end violence against Native women and girls by empowering tribal youth to redefine Native Love. We often hear people talk about “Indian loving” as a hickey and black eye. This campaign gives us the opportunity to think about what Native Love really is, from a place of honor and respect, so we can create change in our thinking and restore safety in Native communities.
Campaign To Raise Awareness on Violence Against Native Women

By Toyacoyah Brown on November 4, 2013
“We have to redefine love and re-educate about love,” says Sarah. We need a return to traditional Native values of respect, caring, and sharing, adds Jessica. “Even when you disagree, always take the high road. Respect one another and talk things through, because children are watching, and your elders are watching. We want to keep the legacy of respect going forward.” Sarah James, Sam Alexander, Princess Lucaj, Allan Hayton, Jessica Black and David Farley
In search of Native Love, we went to Arizona.

“While the traditional roles and duties of men and woman may differ from one tribe to another, Native women should be treated with utmost respect, he says, “because they are the life of your family and your people and your culture, and because they carry on the family name.” Women traditionally play a vital role in both the family and the community, he says. “They should be honored and loved for what they do and thanked on a daily basis. Without them your legacy can’t be carried on.” Justin Secakuku
In search of Native Love, we went to Oklahoma

“It is nothing for my mom to come home from a long day at work and want to cook a meal for my dad; not because she has to, but because she wants to.” Expressions of love, like holding hands while watching television, maintained over the years of a relationship. “That’s the experience that I have with love,” says Ross, “those little acts that my mom and dad do for each other.” Jalisa Ross
Her hope for young people in her community is that they support each other despite individual differences. “Rather than being in competition or belittling one another or looking at different people as bad, we can help empower and encourage one another to find our self worth, our roles, our purpose in life.” Raelyn Rodriguez
No more! I don’t want to live like that anymore.” Smith vows that for her family, for her grandbabies, the cycle will be broken. “They’ll learn to stand up and speak up for themselves and say ‘no, you can’t treat me like that.’ That’s what I want to teach my grandchildren and my community, that it’s not okay.”
Feel Free To learn more about the 2013 project by visiting the NativeLove Campaign page to watch videos and read the stories

- www.nativelove.niwrc.org

- Many thanks to Sarah James, Sam Alexander, Princess Lucaj, Allan Hayton, Jessica Black and David Farley, Jalisa Ross, Justin Secakuku, Raelyn Rodriquez, Evaline Smith, Lisa Frank, and Shelia Harjo for their efforts and sharing what NativeLove means to them.

- Thanks to Buffalo Nickel Creative for their contributions.

- But in 2015 we want to hear what NativeLove means to youth!
FEBRUARY IS TEEN DATING VIOLENCE AWARENESS MONTH & NATIVELOVE
NATIVE Love
NATIVE LOVE CHALLENGE
We heard only three student in the room felt they had someone to talk to if they experienced teen dating. Almost every hand was raised if they personally, a friend or family experienced domestic, sexual or dating violence.

We discussed Teen Dating Violence. We heard what is important to them. We laughed, we gifted T shirts and made videos. Laughter is healing. Tough discussions but healing laughter left us all, students and the NativeLove Team feeling good.
The students of Chemawa challenged three other Indian High Schools to do the NativeLove challenge. NativeLove can reach far!
Dallas Challenged Native Rappers, artist, friends and family to do the NativeLove Challenge.

SpaceBalls (the movie), burritos, powwows, his kids and sweatpants are what NativeLove it to Dallas.
CHALLENGE INFORMATION

February 9, 2015
Through September 1, 2015

Native Youth Ages 8-19

“Make a video of “What Native Love Means To Me…”

Include the hashtag
#NativeLovels

Post on any social media with the hashtag

Challenge your friends and family

Winner announced during Domestic Violence Awareness Month October 2015

Be Creative!

Please like and share the NativeLove Facebook page.

Native Media Awards, Washington, DC July 11, 2016
Native American Music Awards, New York/TBD (?) 2016
All Nations Skate Jam, Albuquerque, NM April 25-26, 2016
Gathering of Nations, Albuquerque, NM April 23-25, 2016
Trip to visit a college campus anywhere within the lower 48 continental United States
Shoni Shimmel Atlanta Dream Basketball game in 2016
Indian National Finals Rodeo, Las Vegas November 3-7, 2015
World Champion Hoop Dance Competition, Phoenix, AZ February 8-9, 2016
Denver March, Denver, CO March 20-22, 2015
United Nations Indigenous Permanent Forum May, 2016 (potential winning video showcased there)
DC Tour- (Smithsonian, NCAI and arranged visits with Congressmen/women?) $10 at
www.nativelove.niwrc.org
SMOKE SIGNALS

...The NativeLove Challenge...

Gee... I wonder if that'll post to Facebook......
Thank you and please let us know if you have any questions!

Email: nativelove@niwrc.org

This project was supported by Verizon HopeLine. With many thanks for their support in ending violence against native women, children and families.