

National Indigenous Women's Resource Center

Webinar Participants' Survey

Our upcoming webinar, entitled “Protecting the Seventh Generation: IPV, its Effect on our Children, and the Solution of Resiliency,” will consist of a four-person panel. The goal for this webinar is that participants will be engaged in critically thinking about how their coalition/advocates/and communities are actively practicing resiliency with youth who witness or experience domestic violence/intimate partner violence in their homes. To this end, we are requesting that you provide, at your comfort, some initial information (for our own learning as well) prior to the webinar. If possible, please return your responses at the upcoming networking meeting in Austin, Texas, or by email to claporte@niwrc.org prior to April 21, 2017. Thank you!

1. What methods do you currently use to foster resiliency in children who are affected by intimate partner violence?
2. What role does tribal culture (such as language) currently play in youth programs in your community?
3. What risk factors are you seeing in children in your community?
4. What does trauma informed care look like to you and how are you employing a trauma informed approach in your work with children?
5. How has CPS historically been involved, intervened, interfered or been used as a resource with IPV survivors in your community?

This project was supported by Grant No. 2013-TA-AX-K025, awarded by the Office on Violence Against Women, U.S. Department of Justice. The opinions, findings, conclusions, and recommendations expressed in this publication / program / exhibition are those of the author(s) and do not necessarily reflect the views of the Department of Justice, Office on Violence Against Women.